Copyright, 1922, by Tulsa News Service. By S. L. WYER. The religious attitude of William Hohenzollern, former German Kaiser, which a crowd of mind which has become more and more marked since his exile, was revealed today in the plans he is making for his forthcoming marriage to Princess Hermine, of Romania. The Kaiser himself picked out the biblical text to be pronounced at the ceremony.

When these words will have been spoken at noon by the Lutheran court clergyman, Doctor Vogel on November 5, the former Kaiser will be married for the second time and the charming Princess Hermine of Romania—almost 40 years the bridegroom's junior, and mother of five children—will be the successor to former Empress Augusta Victoria. She will be the successor, not in point of pomp and prestige, but in a union more durable than crowns, to the "empress of sorrow."

Likes 13th Verse. At the former Kaiser's own request the scriptural lesson dealing with the union will be the thirteenth verse of the thirteenth chapter of the first book of Corinthians. This was the identical passage used when he married Augusta Victoria 41 years ago.

A curious feature is that this particular passage from the Corinthians is a translation by Martin Luther, great German religious reformer. It is different from the English translation, the English text saying "charity," while the German text says "love."

International News Service has succeeded in learning the full details of the program as ordered personally by the former Kaiser. It will be in strange contrast with the first nuptials of the pomp-loving ruler. The arrangements are even simpler than anyone at first believed. A striking illustration is the menu for the wedding breakfast, a copy of which has just been obtained by the correspondent. Before it was even given to the printer.

To Have Real Breakfast. To satisfy the readers' appetite for information here is the fare ascribed by William on a piece of paper.

Nuptial breakfast: (To follow the marriage of the former German emperor and the Princess Hermine von Reuss.) Bouillon in cups. Salmon in aspic. Ham with Cumberland sauce. A shoulder of fowl. Roman punch. Fruit. Desserts.

This menu will be printed on the back of attractively-colored postcards bearing the exiled monarch's home at Doorn.

SAW ASSASSINATION OF RECTOR AND SINGER

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE. ability that there was an automobile at the scene of the murder by the rays of which Mrs. Gibson saw the crime. She could not verify this possibility.

"No, Reverend Hall and Mrs. Mills were not enticed to the scene by their murderers," Mrs. Gibson said. "They were found there."

(Note. This is the most important part of Mrs. Gibson's story, for it clears up the many theories that have been advanced suggesting that the pair were kidnapped and carried to the death scene, or that they were killed elsewhere and their bodies brought to the spot.)

The report read to Mrs. Gibson a story appearing in a New York newspaper which told her experience on the murder night as gleaned from a "reliable source."

"The slayer was a man," the reporter read. "Oh, that's all wrong. They got it all wrong," she said, shaking her head. When she read a paragraph telling that she was in search for a stolen corn a few yards from the crab apple tree and suddenly came upon a group of quarreling people, who soon opened fire, Mrs. Gibson said nothing but to "read on."

To the rest of the printed version she only smiled, saying most of the stories were "all wrong" and maintained her determination to remain quiet until the authorities said she should talk.

"My son, William, knows nothing about it at all. I have not told him a word, and I won't tell a word," she said. "I just happened by the murder scene by accident."

Mrs. Gibson's corroboration of the story that she was an eyewitness of the murders is regarded as the most vital development in the Hall-Mills case for many days. It fixes the time and place of the crime and possibly the identity of the slayers.

Not Ready to Talk Yet.

Mrs. Gibson said she was not ready to talk yet, because the people concerned are very wealthy, she said, and if they learned all I knew they would have time to do away with evidence. "It's all a terrible mess. My real name is Mrs. Jane Gibson and I live with my son, William, 27 years old, here on Hamlin street, some distance away from Millstone road. We have had a hard season. My men and my pigs have been stolen—crops have been awful. On our way home here we have had bad luck and on top of that prices have been so low, tomatoes and other truck have not been worth hauling to town."

All day yesterday Mrs. Gibson rather denied her connection with the "eyewitness" story and flatly refused to talk to the many reporters who called. She even set her dogs on them. Mrs. Gibson is a middle-aged athletic, sensible-minded woman, who gives the appearance of being "unfraid of the devil himself," but who possesses a kindly expression. When asked if she had been afraid to tell of the crime at first, she said:

"It takes a lot to make me afraid."

Tailored Gown Is Braid Trimmed

By ELOISE.

Here is news for the woman who would keep abreast of the fashions. Designers, both here and abroad, seem to be fairly unanimous in their opinion that black has passed through the portals of fashion. The more dignified colors of browns, greens and violets will usurp its place. While without a dissenting voice has been stamped with approval for evening wear. Several of our American dress-makers, however, contend that black will find much favor for afternoon and street wear and with that in mind have designed many number of black crepe and satin gowns. This tailored gown is of black canteen crepe and a smart effect is achieved by means of flat tailored braid.

News of Bristow

ROBBED, SHOT, VICTIM MAY DIE

Slick Road to Install Gasoline Motor Cars Out of Bristow

Special to The World.

BRISTOW, Oct. 25.—Mose Garner of Slick was held up by two hijackers and then shot through the left side, the bullet entering near the left nipple and coming out just under the shoulder blade. It passed near the heart and the man is in a dangerous condition and not expected to live. Garner had $150 in an inside pocket that the thieves overlooked. They only got about $10, which he carried in his vest pocket.

Motor Cars Coming. The gasoline motor cars for the Oklahoma Southwestern railroad will arrive here Friday and will be put on the road between here and Nuyaka. The passenger train that now makes two trips each day will be discontinued and the motor cars will make four trips every day. All trains running on the main line of the Frisco will be met by the Oklahoma Southwestern cars and quick trips will be made between Bristow and Nuyaka via Slick and Edna.

Owens Old Newspaper. J. M. Owens, who lives three miles southeast of Bristow, has a newspaper, The Massachusetts Banner, published at Boston in 1754, making the paper 164 years old. It is a four-column sheet and is still in a good state of preservation. It has been handed down from generation to generation in the Owens family, since given by the youngest son, Mr. Owens, at his death with the paper to his youngest son, R. E. Owens, who is now 14 years old.

$5,000 in Fines Collected. Mayor Shagum has deposited $5,000 in the credit of the city, collected in fines during the month of September and Bristow is by no means an outcast town. When the fact is taken into consideration that this city grew from a sleepy country village of 4,000 in less than 12 months' time, and that people flock in here not only from all parts of this state, but from many other states in the union, it is not to be wondered at that $5,000 in fines be collected in one month. There is not a better policed city in the state.

Jackson Harry, an Indian living four miles south of Bristow, was found near the track of the Oklahoma Southwestern railroad and the report was sent here that he was dead. The passenger train crew on their way to Slick stopped and picked the man up. He was taken to the O. & W. hospital at Slick and after a thorough examination by Dr. H. Clay Williams pronounced "sound to the girls." His head was struck by the pilot of the engine and while the wound is painful, it is not serious.

PRISONERS GIVEN FRESH SUPPLIES

Sheriff Has Pity On Jail Inmates Who Burned Their Bedding

The prisoners of the county jail, who Tuesday afternoon were forced to go through a baptism of smoke of their own making, had yesterday afternoon apparently forgotten the taste and stench of the previous day and had resumed the routine of jail life. None of the prisoners were forced to sleep cold Tuesday night, Jailor Walter Large said, as those who were without bedding were permitted to double up with others.

A half hundred new mattresses and several blankets were delivered to the jail yesterday afternoon and placed in bare cells. The prisoners early yesterday were ordered to clean up the mess they had made, when they piled up most of their bedding Tuesday afternoon and fired it. The jailers reported that they worked willingly and even went so far as to repaint several of the cells.

"They just wanted to play," Jailor Large said yesterday. "You know it is pretty tough to be behind bars for a long time and I guess the boys needed to let off a little steam. They got up a little Tuesday night, raising a big racket and during the fuss some of them tore off couple of cell doors, but they have settled down today. None of them tried to escape last night and I don't think they intended to make any effort to get out. They are just like kids, panned up, and they had to make a little rum-pus to let us know they were still alive."

All of them will have new mattresses and clean blankets from now on and I guess they will be all right. Most of the bedding they burned yesterday was old and would have been replaced within a day or two. None of the prisoners confessed to setting the bedding on fire and no investigation to ascertain the guilty ones was made. Large said he thought every prisoner in jail had a part in starting the smoke smudge. He said that the heavy smoke they were forced to endure for a half hour was plenty of punishment—and the prisoners agreed.

First Woman United States Senator. (Copyright, 1922, by American News Service.) ROME, Oct. 25.—Mr. Harvey's ideas of the 12 commandments do not apply to me at all. There are many other things of more importance to be discussed by a representative of the United States in Great Britain.

their wholesome," to use an old darkeyism. Your ancient Moses was a champion law giver to the children of Israel. He is only in disfavor with law breakers as I see it. Ambassador Harvey would do well to talk plain common sense and less of bumbo.

Another Casual View. ST. LOUIS, Oct. 25.—"Absurd" and "vicious" were the replies made today by leaders of women's organizations when asked to comment on Ambassador Harvey's version that the Bible says women have no souls.

"As long as Ambassador Harvey brings the Ten Commandments into the argument, I wish to remind him that 'honor thy father and mother' puts men and women on the same plane," Mrs. Charles M. Hay, president of the St. Louis Federation of the W. C. T. U., declared. "Also in another part of the Bible it reads, 'the twin shall be one,' which certainly declares the males of any class to be superior."

Other opinions were expressed here that women have more soul than men. "The English people that debt paying was a wholesome virtue and every time it comes into my mind that the taxpayers of the United States had to pay passenger transportation on English transports to make it possible for American boys to get there to fight to save certain war lords in Europe, I have to arise and pace the floor to cool off some of the heat of my indignation."

Ambassador Harvey should don his long breeches and plain hat and give the people over there a little plain talk that would be good for settling the bedding on fire and no investigation to ascertain the guilty ones was made. Large said he thought every prisoner in jail had a part in starting the smoke smudge. He said that the heavy smoke they were forced to endure for a half hour was plenty of punishment—and the prisoners agreed.

FARMING AND POLITICS!

This Will Be Mixture at Atama Meeting Friday Night.

Farmers in the vicinity of Atama are to be treated to another community meeting at the Consolidated school No. 2 Friday night. It was announced yesterday. Practical farming with a mixture of politics will be taken under discussion at the meeting.

While politics is to occupy a place on the day's program, the real reason for the meeting is the endorsement of H. W. Jordan, agricultural representative of the International Harvester company, stationed at Parsons, Kan. Jordan is a practical farmer of 40 years' experience and at the present owns a large and financially successful farm near his home at Parsons. He was here two weeks ago and spoke at many of the schools in the county. The meeting Friday at Union Consolidated school, however, is expected to be the largest held in the county.

Jordan is also speaking at other places in the county this week. He spoke at Turley Wednesday night and Thursday night he will make his practical farming talk at Collinsville. J. S. Malone, county agent, accompanies Jordan during his trips over the county.

The entire day Friday will be spent in agricultural discussions in which many of the prominent farmers of the community are to participate. The political meeting, to which both republicans and democrats have been invited, is to be held at night. The candidates on both tickets will be asked to make short talks following Jordan's lecture.

What education and common sense are doing for thousands

THOUSANDS of people are learning that they cannot drink coffee or tea at supper time and get a good night's sleep.

Experience has taught these men and women to recognize that the caffeine in both coffee and tea is often responsible for a wakeful, restless night, and a nervous "next day."

If you have reason to believe that coffee or tea is causing your headaches, insomnia or nervousness, why not drink rich, refreshing Postum instead.

Postum is the delicious golden-brown cereal beverage that many former coffee-drinkers prefer for its satisfying flavor alone.

Ask your grocer today for Postum and begin serving this delicious beverage at meal times—and see how well you like it.

Postum comes in two forms:—Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages), for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling fully twenty minutes.
